

A still life photograph featuring two vases filled with dried wheat stalks. The vase on the left is a clear, rectangular glass bottle, while the one on the right is a shorter, wider, white ceramic vase. The wheat stalks are tall and feathery, with a warm, golden-brown hue. The background is a plain, light-colored wall, and the entire scene is framed by a thin white border.

POSTCARD

to

---

---

---

---

---

---

---